Board grants hazard pay to county employees

Brittney Lofthouse - Contributing Writer

November 12, 2020 • 24 Pages

"The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort and convenience, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy," a quote by Martin Luther King Jr., is how Macon County Manager Derek

Roland began his proposal to commissioners Tuesday night asking for consideration to provide county employees with a one-time hazard pay bonus for work-Pandemic.

"We always talk about the employees in this organization and how they are great at providing essential services to the folks of Macon County," said Roland. "During all this time, it has never been more truthful and has never became more evident to me personally than it has during the past eight months as Macon County, our state, and nation have continued to deal with the Covid-19 Pandemic. As Macon County manager, I can assure you that there is no department in this organization that has been spared from the challenges and the challenging times that have been brought about by Covid-19."

Roland asked commissioners to consider providing all full-time employees with Macon County with a $750 bonus and part time employees with $150 bonus, to show their appreciation for working during the pandemic. The criteria to determine the holiday bonus, but the funds to do it would come at no added expense to county tax payers.

"We would be able to provide the bonuses to employees with a net zero impact on the county's budget," said Roland.

Roland explained to commissioners that not only have county employees remained working during the pandemic, they have seen a significant increase in services.

Referencing a sample of county departments, Roland said that the county permitting department collected $236,000 receipts for recorded deeds and plats in the Register of Deeds office, a record number of building permits being issued through the inspections department, a record number of meals served daily through the senior service center and more homebound meal deliveries than ever. The Board of Elections conducted a record turnout presidential election; the IT department has had to learn new software overnight; finance has had to mitigate unprecedented budget challenges and funding changes on the state and federal level; transit has continued operating and providing transportation to the county's most vulnerable population, all while taking on substantial personal risk to continue operations.

Commissioner Ronnie Beale, who made the motion to grant employees the bonus without hesitation, noted that Macon County is one of the few governments in the state that did not close down and halt operations during the pandemic. Roland agreed and said that some county governments across the state have yet to continue essential services that Macon County never stopped providing.

"I've never been more proud to be a part of this organization and I've never been more proud of the employees in this organization who have chosen to stand in as leaders during the most challenging time that this county, state, or nation has ever faced," said Roland.

Commissioner Paul Higdon cast the sole opposing vote to the hazard pay, stating that when county employees are hired, they are hired to work in good times and in bad and they shouldn't get a bonus for simply doing the jobs they were hired to do.

"We hire you to perform in good times and bad times," said Higdon. "I work with people in the private sector and I'm not here to represent the Board of Elections, or the Sheriff's Office, or the Board of Health. I appreciate those boards and those committees and respect them fighting to get more money, but the private sector employees don't have the same hazard pay and benefits so county employees shouldn't."

Higdon also argued that private sector employees weren't given paid leave if they had to quarantine when being exposed to Covid-19 like public employees were. However, Federal Cares Act provided funding for employees, both private and public, to quarantine if exposed to COVID19, which came at no cost to private employees. In fact, the Federal Cares Act funding specifically exempted public health employees and first responders from being able to have paid leave to quarantine as they were deemed as essential employees.

Despite saying he appreciated the work county employees perform, he voted against providing them with hazard pay.

The Board of Commissioners voted 4-1 to award all eligible county employees with the bonus.

Reitmeier announces candidacy for mayor

Brittney Lofthouse - Contributing Writer

Although the 2020 General Election is yet to be decided, local residents are already turning their focus to the next election. Franklin resident Daniel "Danny" Reitmeier, announced on social media last week that he would be seeking election as mayor of Franklin. Reitmeier also called a press conference on Monday on the courthouse square to make an official announcement.

Reitmeier is a native of Franklin and a United States Air Force veteran, having served during Desert Storm.

Danny Reitmeier

He said he decided to run for mayor because he wanted to take an active role in local government.

"My reason for running is simple," said Reitmeier. "I believe you can sit on the sidelines or choose to get involved and try to make a difference."

Reitmeier also said that he hopes to encourage change and find ways to make things happen rather than reasons why they cannot.

"It seems like lately it is always 'no we can't' but I would like to think that yeah, we can and I think we need more of 'yes,' while working under whatever current mandates are in place," Reitmeier said in referencing to recent town decisions made surrounding COVID19. "I believe we need to have more of a common sense approach. If something is broken, let's try to fix it."

Reitmeier, a Republican, would be running for mayor, a seat currently held by Bob Scott. While Scott has not made an official announcement that he plans to seek re-election as the election would not occur until 2021, he has said he intends to do so. Scott was re-elected to a fourth term as mayor in 2019 when he faced off against Town Council member Barbara McRae.

"I think it is time for a change, time for something new," Reitmeier said. "New thoughts, new ideas, different perspectives, new personalities, progressive thinking and most of all, progressive action."

Reitmeier went on to promise that he will be running a positive campaign with no personal attacks or smear tactics.

Officially filing for the 2021 Municipal Election will not commence until next June and the election is in November 2021.

N.C. still in Phase 3; indoor gathering limit reduced to 10

Governor Roy Cooper announced Tuesday that North Carolina's indoor mass gathering limit will be lowered to 10 people in an effort to drive down North Carolina's key COVID-19 metrics. Executive Order 176 will go into effect on Friday, Nov. 13, and will be in place through Friday, Dec. 4.

"This reduction in our indoor gathering limit aims to slow the spread and bring down our numbers," Cooper said. "It also sends a serious signal to families, friends and neighbors across our state. Success in slowing the spread will help our businesses."

The order does not change the reduced capacity limits for certain businesses that have already been laid out.

Cooper and NC DHHS Secretary Dr. Mandy Cohen also underscored the need for people to wear a mask any time they gather with people outside of their immediate household.

"Let's keep our friends, family, and loved ones safe this holiday season. If you are going to travel or get together, plan ahead to reduce the risk to your family and friends," said NCDHHS Secretary Cohen. "Remember, it's not how well you know someone when it comes to wearing a mask. If they don't live with you, get behind the mask."

New Phase 3 changes

The Phase 3 measures are extended for another 3 weeks, through December 4, 2020.

• The Mass Gathering Limit for indoor spaces is reduced from 25 to 10 people including indoor in-home gatherings, Indoor in-home social events, all other indoor gatherings not otherwise exempted from the Executive Order

• Gatherings or other events not subject to the 10-person indoor Mass Gathering Limit: Worship, religious, spiritual gatherings, wedding ceremonies, funeral services, and other First Amendment activities, gatherings for work or for receiving governmental services, and gatherings at places that are subject to other capacity limits stated in the Executive Orders. These include fitness and exercise facilities, restaurants, personal care businesses, museums and aquariums, movie theaters, hotels, conference centers, and reception venues.

Current limits that remain the same

• The outdoor Mass Gathering limit remains at 50.

• This Order does not change the reduced capacity limits set out for certain facilities and venues, including:

- Fitness and exercise facilities remain open, subject to stated capacity limits and other requirements.

- Restaurants remain open, subject to stated capacity limits and other requirements.

- Personal care businesses remain open, subject to stated capacity limits and other requirements.

- Museums and aquariums remain open, subject to stated capacity limits and other requirements.

• Bars' outdoor seating areas remain open, subject to reduced capacity limits and other restrictions. Indoor bar areas remain closed.

• Music halls, night clubs, lounges, adult entertainment, venues for live performances, and arenas with spectators where guests are seated remain open, subject to reduced capacity limits.

• Large outdoor facilities with a capacity of more than 10,000 guests remain open at 7% of the facility's total seating capacity, if they meet certain requirements.

• Face coverings are still required in public when it is not possible to maintain social distancing from non-household members.

Assistant DA does double duty as JAG Corp member

John Hindsman Jr. is leaving his civilian job for his military one, transforming from local assistant district attorney into Maj. Hindsman, U.S. Army Reserve judge advocate.

As a member of Judge Advocate General (JAG) Corps, Hindsman deploys for monthly training to Puerto Rico with his unit on Thursday, Nov. 12. During the unit's battle assembly, soldiers will spend four days honing their military skills.

When at home, Hindsman works in the 43rd Prosecutorial District for District Attorney Ashley Hornsby Welch. Though his duties can take him into any of the seven counties that make up the district, he typically works in Macon, Clay and Cherokee counties.

The 38-year-old is a Clay County native who lives near Hayesville with his wife, Michelle, who is an interior designer. He is the son of Jane and Steve Hindsman.

"The district attorney has been exceptionally supportive of my double duties, as has my wife," Hindsman said.

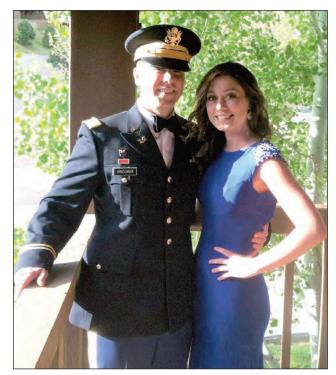

Hindsman frequently works on his military cases at night or on weekends, after his assistant district attorney duties end for the day. Additionally, he participates in the monthly training with his unit, as well as spends up to 30 days each year on active duty.

In 2013, Hindsman was mobilized to serve as trial counsel within 4th Infantry Division in Fort Carson, Colo.

"While there, I worked numerous sexual assault cases, a high-profile murder case and an international child sexual abuse case in conjunction with the Colorado Springs Police Department," he said. "No one day was like another."

"You receive a broad legal education and learn how to be part of a team. I do not have a problem expressing my opinion, but within a command structure, you have to say it in a respectful way. And, ultimately, I know it is only my opinion and advice."

District Attorney Welch said Hindsman's experience as a military lawyer benefits the office. He and Assistant District Attorney Kimberly Harris, a Cherokee County native and veteran of the U.S. Army, add depth to her team's legal talents, she said, thanks to their military service.

Harris served four years on active duty as an intelligence analyst with Second Stryker Brigade.

Hindsman has a family history of military service. His father is a U.S. Navy veteran who served two tours in Vietnam. His uncle served in the Air Force.

"John cares deeply about giving back, and serving in the military is just one way he does that," Welch said. "I'm proud – our entire staff is proud – of his service. He puts a huge amount of time and effort into both his assistant district attorney work and his military work."

Recruited by the Army and U.S. Marine Corps while in high school, Hindsman elected instead to attend Appalachian State University in Boone. He soon found himself in ROTC, his first step to becoming a judge advocate.

Hindsman holds two bachelor degrees, one in criminal justice and the other in political science, as well as two minors, one in business management and the other in military leadership. After college, Hindsman joined the Army as a signal corps officer, commissioned as a second lieutenant. He was granted an educational delay to attend law school and selected Campbell University.

He was recommissioned in 2009 as a judge advocate.

The JAG Corps typically selects only 10 to 20 percent of civilian applicants and junior officer applicants each year, according to information compiled by the Army.

During his years of service, Hindsman has worked in a variety of roles for the military, including helping service members with wills, powers of attorney, notarizations, income tax preparation and landlord/tenant issues.

Currently, Hindsman serves as judge advocate for the 1st Mission Support Command in Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico, and as operational law attorney for 402nd Civil Affairs Battalion. The battalion conducts civil affairs missions in Central and South America with support from the 1st Mission Support Command.

In his role as a judge advocate, Hindsman advises his battalion commander on operational law. JAGs are encouraged to have a broad range of experience, and in the span of his military career, Hindsman has worked in civil, maritime and international law and served on the Rule of Law team for developing countries.

"I have a very strong belief in public service, as do my parents," Hindsman said. "When home, as a senior assistant district attorney, I serve the community I live in and the people I grew up with. When away, I'm proud to serve my country."

WCU launches veterans, military alumni society

Melissa Metcalf Le Roy believes her father, the late Oscar William Metcalf Jr., would have been the first to apply for membership in Western Carolina University's new Veterans and Military Alumni Society. Metcalf, a decorated Vietnam War vet, died Oct. 18, at the age of 72 in Shelbyville, Tenn.

"He dearly loved Western," said Le Roy. "He was proud of his alma mater, the opportunities it gave him. He went to college while working full time and raising a young family. The university supported him, and (his bachelor's degree) really meant something."

With the nation's annual observance of Veterans Day upon us, WCU's Office of Alumni Engagement is launching a new alumni group designed to help former students with service in the U.S. Armed Forces connect with one another and with their alma mater.

The typical member of the alumni served or is serving in the military, said Elizabeth Qualls, coordinator of affinity programs for WCU Alumni Engagement. Both in-person and virtual events are planned for participants to socialize and find common bonds and support.

"Since the society will be most successful when alumni are interested and participating, we will be taking suggestions from members for events and activities," Qualls said. "The opportunities are endless. Our main goal is to have an alumni society where they can build a community and have events tailored to their interests. WCU will also provide mentoring opportunities and different ways for alumni to engage with the university."

Metcalf had been looking forward to such involvement, Le Roy said. He had been scheduled for an honor flight to Washington, D.C., that was unfortunately canceled because of the pandemic. A special ceremony prior to Veterans Day was held at the Bedford County, Tennessee, courthouse Sunday, Nov. 8.

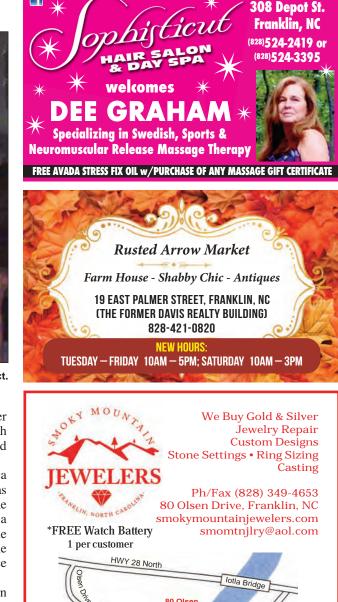

Oscar William Metcalf Jr. served in Vietnam in the U.S. Navy. Metcalf passed away Oct. society would be anyone who has 18, just weeks before the launch of WCU's Veterans and Military Alumni Society.

Even though Metcalf, an Asheville native, died from cancer prior to the ceremony, the event went ahead as planned, with his family being formally recognized. Among the medals and commemorative items presented was a Zippo lighter.

"That was special. Dad had an inscribed USS America Zippo lighter during the war," Le Roy said. "But when I was born, he was determined to quit smoking. So, one day, as he drove to Cullowhee for class and instinctively went to light a cigarette, he instead tossed the lighter and cigarette out the window. He successfully quit smoking, but later wished he done it without losing the lighter. This replica was to replace that keepsake."

A celebration of life for Metcalf's friends and family in Western North Carolina will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 22, at Jackson Park in Hendersonville.

HHFWNC is a 501(c)3 organization whose mission is to raise funds for the construction of a 6-bed hospice inpatient facility for the far western region of North Carolina (Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Jackson, Macon, and Swain counties and the Qualla Boundry) and northeast Georgia. The demographics in this geographic area speak to the need for a hospice inpatient facility – roughly 25% of this area's population is age 65 or older, more than 50,000 individuals, the age group most served by hospice, yet no Hospice Houses exist in this region.

Hospice Houses provide relief from physical, emotional, and spiritual suffering of people who are facing life's final journey and respite care so that caregivers can get the rest they need to stay well. Hospice helps people peacefully navigate the end-oflife passage with grace and dignity.

Funds awarded to prevent colorectal cancer in N.C.

Hospice House in final stretch toward completion

The North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services (NCDHHS) has received five years of funding from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to partner with Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) to increase colorectal cancer screenings, particularly among underserved communities in North Carolina.

"Colorectal cancer is the fourth leading cause of all cancer deaths in North Carolina, but it's treatable and beatable if caught in early stages," said Dr. Susan Kansagra, Section Chief for Chronic Disease and Injury Prevention in the Division of Public Health. "Our aim is to remove barriers to screening and treatment for people in the higher-risk age range (50 to 75), including those who may not have access to health insurance, and move North Carolina further toward the national testing goal of screening 80 percent in every community."

This new funding, which includes nearly $700,000 in the first year, will assist select FQHCs in improving their colorectal cancer screening systems and educating their communities on the importance of routine screenings for early detection. The funding will also be used to provide appropriate follow-up care for uninsured or underinsured patients who have abnormal test results.

FQHCs are community-based health care centers that provide primary care services in underserved areas, including for individuals without health insurance. FQHCs that have colorectal cancer screening rates of less than 60 percent and have at least two clinic sites will be considered for participation in the program.

Colorectal cancer particularly impacts historically marginalized populations, including racial and ethnic minorities, with African Americans having the highest incidence and mortality rates. In 2019, North Carolina FQHCs served more than 610,000 patients, 33 percent of whom were African American and 30 precent who reported Hispanic/LatinX ethnicity. However, only 46 percent of patients age 50-75 were screened for colorectal cancer.

With the coronavirus pandemic causing people to postpone some routine medical procedures, national colorectal cancer screening rates have declined 86 percent, according to an analysis by Epic Health Research Network. As the COVID-19 virus also disproportionately impacts historically marginalized populations in North Carolina, it is more important than ever to increase preventative screenings among the state's vulnerable communities.

The funding will be administred by the North Carolina Partnerships to Increase Colorectal Cancer Screening (NC PICCS), which includes the NCDHHS Cancer Prevention and Control Branch, the American Cancer Society, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Regular cancer screenings are critical and can be done as safely as possible following CDC and NCDHHS guidelines for health care facilities. To learn more about NCDHHS initiatives to ease the burden of cancer in North Carolina, visit publichealth.nc.gov/chronicdiseaseandinjury/cancerpreventionandcontrol.

Vaya Health to holding virtual town hall Nov. 19

Vava Health is seeking input on North Carolina's publicly funded system for behavioral health and intellectual and/or developmental disability (IDD) services during a live virtual town hall on Facebook.

The N.C. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) will host the online event Thursday, Nov. 19, at 6 p.m. Vaya members, families and advocates are invited to attend. Participants will have a chance to share feedback, ask questions and voice any concerns as the state's public system for mental health, substance use disorder and IDD services undergoes major changes.

Vaya and DHHS want to hear about how the system is working or how they can help create a system that improves health outcomes and promotes recovery for North Carolinians. The town hall will focus on the needs of Western North Carolinians and will include remarks and presentations Kody Kinsley, DHHS deputy secretary; Victor Armstrong, director of the N.C. Division for Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities and Substance Abuse Services; and Brian Ingraham, CEO of Vaya Health.

To join the live event - courtesy of UNC-TV and the Governor's Institute - visit www.facebook.com/GovInst/live. The link will be active 15 minutes before the event begins. Participants will be able to post questions in the live chat, record a video message beforehand or submit questions in advance to Suzanne.Thompson@dhhs.nc.gov.

Southwestern's Nurse Aide program gets a boost

Enrollment in Southwestern Community College's Nurse Aide program just got a lot more affordable.

The North Carolina Community College's System has recently awarded grant money to support students enrolled in the Nurse Aide Program at SCC.

The North Carolina Targeted Assistance Program (NCTAP) is a state grant program designed to increase enrollment for high-demand occupations. This year, the grant will be providing scholarships to eligible students in SCC's Nurse Aide program to cover costs for their spring 2021 tuition.

Since its inception in 2002 NCTAP has aimed to increase the percentage of North Carolinians, particularly those in rural populations, pursuing and easily accessing education and training through NC Community Colleges.

SCC's Nurse Aide program prepares students to become certified nursing assistants (CNAs). CNAs help care for physically or mentally ill, injured or disabled individuals in hospitals, nursing and personal care facilities and mental health settings. Working under the supervision of nurses, CNAs perform much-needed daily tasks such as serving meals, making beds and helping patients eat, dress and bathe.

"Local healthcare providers consistently express the need for qualified Nurse Aides," said Dr. Thom Brooks, Vice President of Instruction and Student Services at SCC. "We are proud to offer this scholarship opportunity to support folks who are interested in preparing for careers as CNAs."

for nursing assistants is expected to grow eight percent by 2029, a much faster growth rate than the average for all occupations. Many local employers, such as Harris Medical Associates, Skyland Care Center and Tsali Care Center, are constantly seeking CNAs to join their practices.

With today's number of people who require assistance with their healthcare needs steadily increasing, nurse aides are in even more demand than usual," said Donna Conner, Nurse Aide Instructor and Program Director. "This scholarship will aid in the educational and professional development of a number of students, which in return will benefit many people in our communities for years to come."

What's new on the plateau

Patrick Taylor - Highlands Mayor

A picture is worth a thousand words, or at least 500. The photo of a overstuffed bear resistant garbage toter that was placed on the road Sunday afternoon illustrates a growing problem in Highlands (photo below). I suspect a VRBO group decided it was acceptable to just pile their garbage up on the roadside. I hope this was not the deed of a permanent resident.

Patrick Taylor

What is unfortunate is that much of the garbage in the photo could have been recycled. The toter was less than a mile away from our recycling trailer at the Highlands Recreation Center. The cardboard boxes, beer cans and wine bottles didn't have to appear in the photograph.

I have researched the issue of overloading toters. Many commercial companies, like Waste Management, have additional fees for overloading their trash toters. If the lid cannot be closed, the additional fees go into place. In lieu of fees, the town has fines for placing loose garbage on the roadside. It is a form of littering.

What is distressing about the image is the message it communicates about how people view this beautiful mountain environment. It suggests a sense of entitlement about just throwing away garbage.

As I have stated many times before, everything consumed on the plateau is trucked in and sold. It costs more money on average to purchase these products, but folks accept those prices as part of being in this beautiful, but isolated mountain community. The flip side is that it costs more money to remove the trash generated on the plateau. It is intolerable to just throw garbage on the roadside. What is seen in the photograph increases the likelihood of trash being scattered. Caring citizens routinely participate in litter sweeps to keep our community beautiful. We are all responsible

A letter to me from a gleeful foe

"We have been trying to get rid of Trump for four years, because he doesn't represent the sheep, or represent us, your Compassionate Helpers. So, this time around:

"1. We scared the sheep about a cold virus, so badly that they became hysterical and would do anything we told them to do, like wearing face masks and not touching each other and (the best) locking themselves down in their homes.

"2. We changed the emphasis on deaths from the cold virus to "cases," since there weren't enough actual deaths to keep the scam going; also, we exaggerated the number of deaths and cases by about 1,000 percent.

"3. Then we told the sheep that they would be killing others if they physically came out to vote, so they should vote by mail. We had our friends at the postal "service" send mail-in ballots to everyone. Then millions of mail-in ballots were harvested from the sheep; sometimes a few bucks were passed along.

"4. At the same time we had our friends in the national media maintain that the Democrat presidential contender was a shoo-in to win, no problem (thus, why bother to vote, non-sheep?); they also did a great job of keeping the virus hysteria at a high level. People were clamoring for an untested vaccine (more $ billions for our friends).

"5. Then, when it was time to count the votes, our election friends (heroes) did what they had to do to keep Trump from winning (even though he probably did.) We made sure that if a state was too close to call, it was taken care of, by hook or crook, so to speak.

"6. As a bonus, we rid the country of thousands of probably millions of those nasty non-essential small businesses, and made ourselves hundreds of millions of dollars at the same time (thank you, taxpayers and the printing press). We also trimmed the old people population along with other use-less eaters.

"7. We found our how incredibly ease it is to get the sheep to do whatever we want. (Fear works.)

"And, there you have. Democracy in action."

Stephen Crosby – Franklin, N.C.

What should Christians pray for the most?

Your heart may be heavy and sometimes filled with fear these days. That seems to be true for most of us these days. When we fear though, we're not fully trusting God like we should. Believe me, me and my family know. Our daughter Rosea makes a trip with us in her car every three weeks to Newnan, Ga., below Atlanta. We both are cancer patients. I've finished treatments for a while, maybe a long while. My wife Darlene will be getting one every three weeks until next July, God willing. With all this stress in life, how do we cope? The answer is very simple. Prayer is the answer to all our problems We've gone backwards in America for too long. It's time to pray like the old days. We need to pray for each other. We need to pray for the leaders of our country. The Bible tells us, I think, if I'm not mistaken, to pray for "all those in authority."

I've never read and studied the Bible like I should have, I guess. I've listened to some great man and women of God, though. They've read and studied it most of their life. The Holy Spirit lets me know when they are right or wrong. Every Christian has that helper inside.

Yes, we need to pray more these days. Most of all though, we need to pray for a Great Revival in America. Hopefully, I will pray more for this.

Eighth Covid death recorded in Macon County

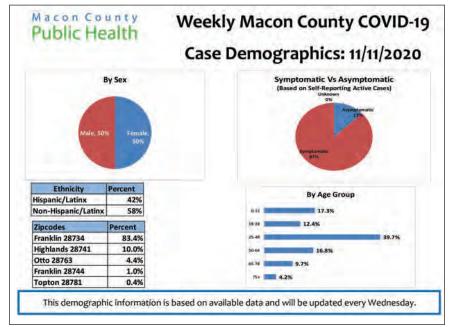

Macon County Public Health reported Monday that a Macon County resident diagnosed with COVID-19 has died. The person was over the age of 65 and had underlying health conditions. To protect the family's privacy, no further information will be released about this patient.

"The family and loved ones of this individual are in our thoughts and prayers. As we head into the holiday season and as more people gather indoors, please continue to practice the 3Ws [Wearing a mask, Washing your hands, and Waiting 6 feet from others and be mindful of those that are higher risk," stated Kathy McGaha, Macon County Health Director.

To date, MCPH report 811 total cases in the county, with 40 active positive, 763 recovered and eight deaths. Eighty-seven tests administered at MCPH are pending results.

On Wedneseday, the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services reported the state's highest one day number of COVID-19 cases with 3,119 cases. Other key metrics also increased with hospitalizations at 1,246 and the percent of tests that were positive climbing to 7.9 percent.

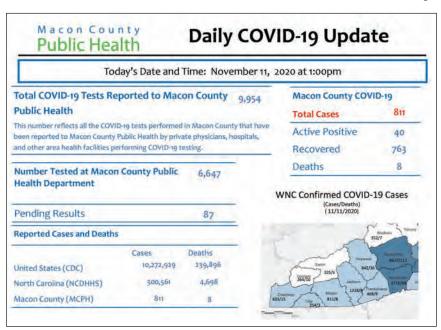

"This is not the milestone we want to be hitting, particularly as we head into holidays where people want to come together. We've had more time to learn about this devastating virus and study after study shows that these three simple actions can help keep our family, friends and neighbors from getting sick," said NCDHHS Secretary Mandy K. Cohen,

On Tuesday, Governor Roy Cooper announced that North Carolina's indoor mass gathering limit will be lowered to 10 people in an effort to drive down COVID-19 metrics. Executive Order 176 will go into effect on Friday, Nov. 13, and will be in place through Friday, Dec. 4.

State health officials advise people to avoid travel over Thanksgiving and only gather with people in your household. For those that do plan to travel or get together with others, NCDHHS has issued guidance outlining steps to reduce the risk of spreading COVID-19, including getting tested three to four days ahead of time. A test can help someone know if they have COVID-19 even if they do not yet have symptoms. However, a test can miss some infections. Furthermore, a negative test only gives you information for that point in time. Community testing events and other testing sites are listed online at ncdhhs.gov/testingplace.

People who have been recently diagnosed with COVID-19, have symptoms of COVID-19 or have been around a person with COVID-19, should not host or participate in any in-person gatherings until they complete their isolation or quarantine period.

For a full list of guidance about traveling and gathering during the holidays, along with a chart outlining low, medium and high-risk activities, see the NCDHHS Interim Guidance for Thanksgiving Holiday.

for disposing the trash we generate in a conscientious and responsible manner.

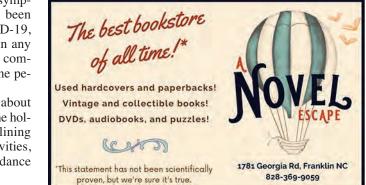

There are related issues that the town and the county need to address. One priority is to locate a site and build a convenience center in, or near, Highlands where folks can recycle and deposit excessive amounts of waste. The project will be challenging but has to be addressed.

Second, the community needs to examine policies on short term rentals, i.e., VRBOs [Vacation Rental By Owner]. I, along with some commissioners, are getting growing feedback about visitors coming to town to party and have a good time and then leaving garbage messes behind for town sanitation workers to haul off. I suspect this short term rental issue will be a major item in the Highlands Community Plan which will be coming out toward the end of 2021. It will be interesting to see how residents feel about the situation.

In the meantime, we can all continue to be good, environmental stewards of the plateau. Town staff and law enforcement are reviewing ordinances and polices to see if improvements can be made.

Now that I am finished writing this article, I going out to pickup bags of trash on US 64 that wonderful volunteers collected this past weekend.

Long before ransomware attacks on school districts and government offices were commonplace, Southwestern Community College launched the nation's first associate degree program in Cyber Crime Technology.

Two decades later, SCC remains at the forefront of this vital field in information technology.

Cyberdegrees.org recently ranked Southwestern at No. 2 in its listing of the "Best Cybersecurity Schools for 2020." SCC was one of only two North Carolina colleges to make the Top 25 (Stanly Community College was 24th).

"When (former Criminal Justice program coordinator) Mike Burnette and I started this program in 2000, we knew it would be relevant in the decades to come," said Kirk Stephens, program coordinator. "But even I am surprised at how much the field has grown in 20 years. Cybersecurity is one of the fastestgrowing segements of the Information Technology sector. Every day, we see new stories about the serious problems resulting from poor information security. No government, no industry, no business sector is immune from cybersecurity threats."

Offered entirely online, SCC's Cyber Crime Technology program is a two-year curriculum. Graduates work in sectors like financial services, small businesses, healthcare and education.

Students in Stephens' program get hands-on experience with security software, tools and operating systems.

"Cyber criminals have the ability to paralyze a government agency or public corporation," said Dr. Don Tomas, President of Southwestern Community College. "The threats to cybersecurity have escalated dramatically, especially with the rapid increase in teleworking brought on by COVID-19. The work that Kirk has done in preparing his students to be successful in the field takes on even more importance, and I'm very proud of this recognition for Kirk and our Cyber Crime Technology program." The Cyber Crime Technology program's honor is the latest in a series of high national rankings for Southwestern

Community College, which was ranked No. 1 overall in the nation by BestColleges.com in August. It was the fourth time in the last 13 years that SCC has been included among the Top 10 colleges in the U.S. Washington Monthly placed Southwestern at No. 4 (in 2007) and No. 9 (in 2010), and WalletHub had SCC at No. 7 in 2015.

Curbside drop-off sites to open for Operation Christmas Child

More than 4,000 locations will now offer a curbside drop-off option for the Samaritan's Purse project, Operation Christmas Child. Volunteers are preparing to collect shoebox gifts during National Collection Week, Nov. 16-23.

Operation Christmas Child has been collecting and delivering shoebox gifts—filled with school supplies, hygiene items and fun toys—to children worldwide for more than two decades. This is a project that everyone can still be a part of, even with COVID-19 restrictions.

There's still time for individuals, families, and groups to transform empty shoeboxes into fun gifts. The project partners with local churches across the globe to deliver these tangible expressions of God's love to children in need. To find a step-by-step guide on How to Pack a Shoebox, visit samaritanspurse.org/occ. "In the midst of the pandemic, the needs are greater than ever before," said Franklin Graham, president of Samaritan's Purse. "Children around the world need to know that God loves them and there is hope. A simple shoebox gift opens the door to share about the true hope that can only be found in Jesus Christ."

Participants can find the nearest drop-off location and hours of operation as they make plans to drop off their shoebox gifts at samaritanspurse.org/occ/drop-off-locations. The online lookup tool is searchable by City or Zip code. Signs at each location will identify the curbside drop off. Macon County has two Drop-Off Locations and their scheduled hours are listed.

Charles Lee Cassidy

It is with great sadness that the family of Charles Lee Cassidy announces his passing on Nov. 5, 2020. Known as Chuck by friends and family, he was a husband, dad, and grandad who enjoyed his family and encouraged large family gatherings for every occasion.

Born on Dec. 19, 1939, a country boy raised on a six-acre farm near Indianapolis, he knew the meaning of hard work. He was a tinkerer who valued a dollar. Many times his family heard, "I'm not cheap, I'm practical." Despite that practicality, he loved Corvettes and boats and owned several during his lifetime. He was down to earth, outgoing, caring, and a friend to those he met. He led a life of servitude. He held several positions including being a deputy in Indiana as a helicopter pilot and in Florida as airport security. He was active in the Army Reserve and, as a hobby, a private pilot that especially enjoyed piloting the Stearman biplane.

He is preceded in death by his parents, Merle Lee Cassidy and Gladys Zoe Reed Cassidy, and a brother, Wayne Cassidy.

Left with wonderful memories is his wife, Maureen Patricia Mahoney Cassidy, who was the love of his life. Their shared values and mutual love never stopped giving Maureen butterflies when she looked into his blue eyes. He is also survived by his children, Steven Cassidy (Denise) of Beech Grove, Ind., and Melanie Allen (Robert) of Indianapolis, Ind.; two grandchildren, Katie Allen and Kyle Allen; and his sister, Maryanne Greeley, also of Indianapolis.

A funeral mass and celebration of life will be held Friday Nov. 13, at 11 a.m., at St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church, Franklin. Social distancing will be observed and face masks will be required. In lieu of flowers memorial contributions may be made to St.

Elinor Metzger

Elinor Metzger, 96, beloved mother, grandmother and greatgrandmother, who inspired others with her grace, strength and love, returned to her Creator, Savior and Lord Friday evening Oct. 30, 2020, at Eckerd Living Center in Highlands N.C. Her daughters Kathleen Shuford and Laura Doonan and son Harrison Metzger were at her side when her spirit departed this world.

She was born Dec. 2, 1923, in Atlanta, Ga., the only daughter of the Rev. Elton and Lois Sauls. She was raised in Atlanta and graduated from the Washington Seminary. She attended Agnes Scott College for a year and then attended the Arts Student League in NYC. While she was in NYC and later in Panama City, Fla., she worked as a nurse's aide due to the shortage of nurses during World War II. Her love of art inspired pursuits throughout her life, including drawing, photography, gourmet cooking, and singing and worshipping with her family at All Saint's Episcopal Church in Atlanta. That family had its genesis when Elinor as a young woman worked in a wartime factory with a striking redheaded woman from Rhode Island, whose husband and son were serving in World War II. Dorothy MacKaye Metzger told Elinor stories of her brave and handsome son, Earl H. Metzger Jr., who was then manning anti-aircraft artillery in North Africa and Sicily. Elinor agreed to meet Earl upon his return from the war, and thus began a romance that lasted more than 53 years. They were married Feb. 22, 1947, and raised their three children in Atlanta where Earl served as director of Model Cities for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and as a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army Reserves. They had many friends, and she loved to entertain with her warm hospitality and culinary artistry. They traveled to France and the UK many times and instilled their children with a love of nature, people and social justice. They were supporters of the Civil Rights movement in the 1960s. Elinor served as a volunteer and supporter of numerous civic and church organizations including as a board member of the Georgia Conservancy and president of the Atlanta Fulton chapter of the League of Women Voters. She went to work as the director of the VISTA program (Volunteers in Service to America) during the 1960s. In 1981, they retired to Highlands, N.C., where they built a home surrounded by gardens that Elinor planted and tended. She helped found and was the first president of The Laurel Garden Club in Highlands. They continued to enjoy traveling and entertaining and celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a glorious party. Even after his passing on Nov. 12, 2000, Elinor continued to live a vibrant and joy-filled life. She was active in her church. The Episcopal Church of the Incarnation in Highlands, as a licensed Lay Reader and Eucharistic Visitor, taking communion to seniors who were unable to attend services. She was a graduate of the University of the South, School of Theology's Education for Ministry program, a four-year program of theological education that she enjoyed so much she participated another four years. She was beloved by her many friends for her sweet and affable nature, wit, intelligence, wisdom and loving care for those in need. She lived for several years at Chestnut Hill of Highlands before declining health required her to move to Eckerd Living Center. She passed away peacefully, surrounded by her three children who sung to her, read her poetry, and laid hands upon her on her final day.

Survivors include children, Kathleen and the Rev. Carlton Shuford of Augusta, Ga., Laura and Patrick Doonan of Atlanta; and Harrison and Jeanne Metzger of Mills River, N.C.; grandchildren, Josh and Laura Shuford of Marietta, Ga., Andy and Julie Shuford and Kevin Doonan of Los Angeles, Calif., Kristan and Paul Makl of Seattle, Wash., Charley Doonan of Denver, Colo., Anna and Daniella Metzger of Mills River, N.C.; four great-grandchildren; and beloved friend Helen Moore of Highlands, N.C., who ministered to the family with the same sort of grace and hospitality that Elinor shared her entire life.

The family thanks Eckerd Living center for their loving care of Elinor, and asks that in lieu of flowers donations in her memory be made to Jubilee Partners, P.O. Box 68, Comer, GA 30629; Cashiers Highlands Humane Society, 200 Gable Drive, Sapphire, NC 28774; or MountainTrue, 121 Third Avenue West, Suite #1. Hendersonville, NC 28792.

Chase Elliott wins at Phoenix, takes 2020 Cup championship and adds to family legacy

Holly Cain - NASCAR Wire Service

Chase Elliott won the biggest race of his life – rallying from a last place starting position to cross the Phoenix Raceway finish line first in the Series Finale 500 - earning his first career NASCAR Cup Series championship at the age of 24 – the youngest champion in NASCAR's premier series in 25 years.

Ultimately Elliott won by 2.74-seconds over former fellow title contenders, Team Penske teammates Brad Keselowski and Joey Logano. The fourth championship-eligible driver, Joe Gibbs Racing's Denny Hamlin, finished fourth.

Seven-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson, 45, was fifth in his final race as a fulltime driver, congratulating his young Hendrick Motorsports teammate Elliott on-track and later on pit lane - a fitting symbol of the sport's "passing of the guard."

"Awesome, awesome, awesome," Elliott screamed into his team radio after taking the checkered flag. "We are the champions!"

Three of the four title contenders led laps on the day at the famed one-mile desert oval. Logano was out front 125 laps and Keselowski led 16 laps, but Elliott's 154 laps led were indicative of his motivation, talent and the No. 9 Hendrick Motorsports Chevrolet team's preparedness for this race. He only earned his place in the fourdriver championship field with a clutch victory last week at Martinsville (Va.) Speedway and made the most of that work on Sunday.

Ultimately Elliott wrestled the lead away from Logano for good with 42 laps of the 312-lap race remaining. It was the result of a determined driver and team after the car failed pre-race inspection Sunday morning and had to start last in the 39-car field.

His focus was evident, however, from the drop of the green flag. Elliott's Chevrolet was 15th by Lap 15. He took the lead for the first time at Lap 79 and led seven different times on the afternoon.

Once Elliott rallied to the front, the four title contenders were predominantly the top four drivers on track the remainder of the race – truly settling the championship among themselves.

"Obviously when you don't win it hurts, it definitely stings," Logano said. "I told the guys before the race, you can't lose. You either win or you get stronger. Unfortunately, we got stronger today."

With this championship, Elliott and his father Bill (the 1988 series champion) now become only the third fatherson NASCAR Cup Series championship combination in the sport's history joining Lee and Richard Petty and Ned and Dale Jarrett. Elliott's father stood trackside for the race and joked afterward that he had given his son some simple advice for the big day. Advice Chase readily admits went through his head as he challenged for the life-changing trophy.

"He told me, 'all you have to do is beat three people'," a smiling Elliott said of father's pre-race advice. "He said all week he felt confident that we could come out here and do this. And he was right.

"This is a moment I've dreamed about. This is all I've wanted to do is be a race car driver and race in NASCAR. To be honest, I'm humbled."

Elliott's good friend Ryan Blaney finished sixth followed by regular season champion Kevin Harvick, Matt DiBenedetto, William Byron and Martin Truex Jr.

Clint Bowyer, who is moving to the FOX television booth, and former series champion Matt Kenseth, who is returning to retirement, finished 14th and 25th, respectively in their final race. Crew chief Chad Knaus, at the helm for Johnson's seven titles, led Hendrick driver Byron to that ninth-place showing.

Stewart-Haas Racing's Cole Custer, who qualified for the Playoffs with a victory at Kentucky Speedway this summer, finished 28th officially wrapping up the 2020 Sunoco Rookie of the Year honors.

"I'm at a loss for words, this is unbelievable," Elliott said. "Oh, my gosh. We did it. I mean, we did it. That's all I've got to tell you. Unreal.

"Crew chief, Alan Gustafson, is now a NASCAR Cup Series champion, and very deserving. I felt like we took some really big strides this year, and last week was a huge one. To come out of that with a win and a shot to come here and have a chance to race is unbelievable. This is unreal."

Austin Cindric wins 2020 Xfinity championship in overtime at Phoenix

After establishing the pace most of the afternoon, 22-year old Austin Cindric ultimately relied on raw determination to claim the 2020 NASCAR Xfinity Series championship. The Team Penske driver pulled off the most clutch lap-pass of his young career to take the race victory in Saturday's Desert Diamond Casino West Valley 200 and earn his first NASCAR title.

After pitting for tires just before a final overtime restart, Cindric was able to work his way forward at the final green flag and got around Noah Gragson on the last lap - driving away to a .162-second victory for his sixth win of the season, easily the most celebrated of his career.

After celebratory donuts in his car, Cindric pulled himself out of the driver's window, climbed on top of his bright yellow No. 22 Team Penske Ford and flashed No. 1 victory signs on both hands before waving a giant champion's flag.

"There was a lot of work put into this race car," a grinning Cindric said, carefully taking the time to thank everyone from his team owner, NASCAR Hall of Famer Roger Penske, to his sponsors, his team, pit crew, spotter and ultimately his mom and dad.

"I'm speechless, I can't believe it. You know the equipment you're in is the best of the best and the people you're working with are the best of the best," he added.

Certainly as exuberant as Cindric understandably was, the other three members of the Championship 4 felt disappointment and dismay. Veteran Justin Allgaier, who led a race high 77 laps – five more laps out done, that's all you can really ask for."

"So close but so far away," Allgaier said. "First of all, hats off to Austin and the entire Team Penske group, they've been strong competitors all year. To have the race they did tonight, they were obviously the best car and they deserved to win.

front. In addition to Cindric and Allgaier, the Stewart-Haas

Racing driver Chase Briscoe showed the speed that had made him the winningest driver in the series this year. He won a career-high and season-best nine races and led 41 laps on this championship night, but a struggle to get his car comfortable, a late race spin and the loss of track position was a setback he ultimately couldn't overcome.

"Just a frustrating day, this is by far not my best race track," said Briscoe, who will move into the SHR team's No. 14 NASCAR Cup Series ride next year. "Definitely frustrating to finish fourth in the championship after the year we had, but overall to win nine races, it's been a phenomenal year."

Haley, a three-race winner in 2020, didn't lead any laps in his No. 11 Kaulig Racing Chevrolet, but he rallied from a slow start and kept his car competitively among the top 10.

"It's been awesome," Haley said of his Playoff berth. "Just the growth of this Kaulig Racing team from when I stepped into it last year and were out in the first round of the Playoffs.

"Just the courage and the faith and everyone at Kaulig Racing, we bet on each other. I love it. I love everyone there. Super excited and super blessed to have another year. Doesn't sting as much because I know next year I get another chance at it."

front than Cindric – was in position to try and secure his first NASCAR title.

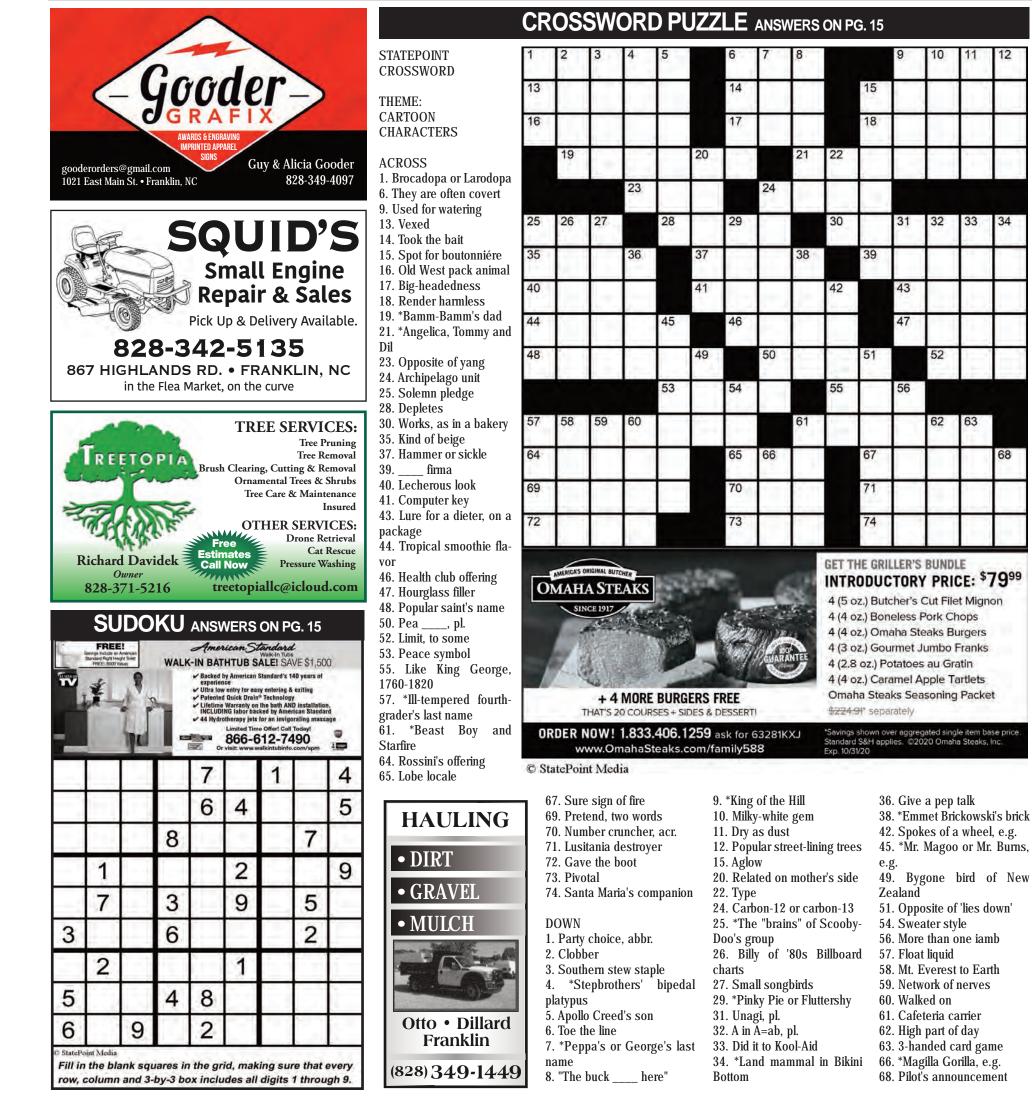

The 34-year old driver of the No. 7 JR Motorsports Chevrolet kept the field honest consistently throughout the evening but ultimately on that last restart Allgaier was unable to hold off Cindric who had fresher tires and was able to muscle around Allgaier and Allgaier's JR Motorsports teammate Gragson.

Allgaier finished fifth and the other Championship 4 drivers: Justin Haley and Chase Briscoe finished eighth and ninth, respectively.

Gragson (second), Brandon Jones (third) and Michael Annett (fifth) were the non-Playoff drivers to finish in the topfive. Harrison Burton, Ross Chastain, Haley, Briscoe and
